“ One time I was to take photos of Chris for a photoshoot he wanted prior to that day he posted about it on Facebook and had tagged me in it and then one of our mutual friends joked around and said be careful the camera might suck your soul and he said something like I think I can handle it and I think I jokingly said it will only take a little bit.....I keep thinking of every encounter we've ever had I will miss him.

“ This was a brother to me.....I grew up knowing Chris from an internet chatroom where we learned we had a shared love of rock n' roll music and the band "Cold". Finally got to meet him and hang out last year at a Sevendust concert; wouldn't trade that night for anything. He would have given a stranger the shirt off his back - no matter how bad things got for him, he was always trying to brighten someone else's day.I love you, bro.Rest easy.-Josh

“ Chris was like my brother more than a friend. He is the most loving person I have ever knew He had a heart of gold and the best unique personality he could make u smile when u down or lonely and he could make u laugh until u cried. There will never be another person like him he loved with everything in him and he is loved by many. He touched alot of peoples heart. The 5 years of knowing him was the best we become brother and sister by heart. he will be missed dearly and will forever hold a special place in my heart. To his mom you raised a fine young man thank you for that and he loved you dearly. FLYHIGHBUB.
