“ Norman’s son, Jay, wrote this. I’m his mom and I got his permission to post it on here. It’s a great tribute to his uncle. “ In many ways, James Lolie represented everything you could ever want a man to be. Forever humble and always kind, James had an easygoing spirit and an unforgettable smile.

And though I'm sure he had bad days, like the rest of us, he never stopped smiling. Quick with a joke - especially if they were corny - James' indelible spirit always found a way to uplift those around him.

Unexpectedly, James left this life yesterday afternoon. And while his passing saddens those of us who knew him, there's not a doubt in my mind that his effervescent smile is illuminating Heaven tonight.

No more pain. No more earthly trials and tribulations. Undoubtedly, his wife, my Aunt Judy, who passed in 2005 was happy too see him. She might have even asked him what took so long. Ha.

So while those of us who knew him, will mourn his abrupt passing, there is no doubt where James is now. In the arms of the Father and beside his beloved wife. Eternally. Forever after all.

Now, if that doesn't turn your frown upside down, then idk what will.

RIP Uncle James. We love ya. We miss ya. And we all hope too see you again.”

“ My sincerest sympathy for James entrance to heaven. Jay and I have known James for almost 40 years. He was a Godly man who was always involved in his church. He loves to sing so I'm sure he'll be part of the heavenly choir!
